Five for the Future

⌚ September 30, 2014    ━ Essays, WordPress

On Sunday at WordCamp Europe I got a question about how companies contribute back to WordPress, how they're doing, and what companies should do more of.

First on the state of things: there are more companies genuinely and altruistically contributing to growing WordPress than ever before. In our ecosystem web hosts definitely make the most revenue and profits, and it's been great to see them stepping up their game, but also the consultancies and agencies around WordPress have been pretty

The screenshot shows a web browser window with the URL <https://make.wordpress.org> in the address bar. The page itself is the 'Get Involved' section of the WordPress.org website, specifically the 'Make WordPress' area. The header includes the WordPress logo and navigation links for Showcase, Themes, Plugins, Mobile, Support, Get Involved, About, Blog, and Hosting, along with a 'Download WordPress' button. A search bar is also present. The main content features a large blue banner with the heading 'Make WordPress' and text about contributing to WordPress. Below this, there's a section titled 'Meetings' and another section listing ways to get involved, including 'Core' and 'Design' teams.

Make WordPress

Whether you're a budding developer, a pixel-perfect designer, or just like helping out, we're always looking for people to help make WordPress even better.

If you want to get involved in WordPress, this is the place to be. We've got blogs for each contributor group, general news, and upcoming events.

Meetings

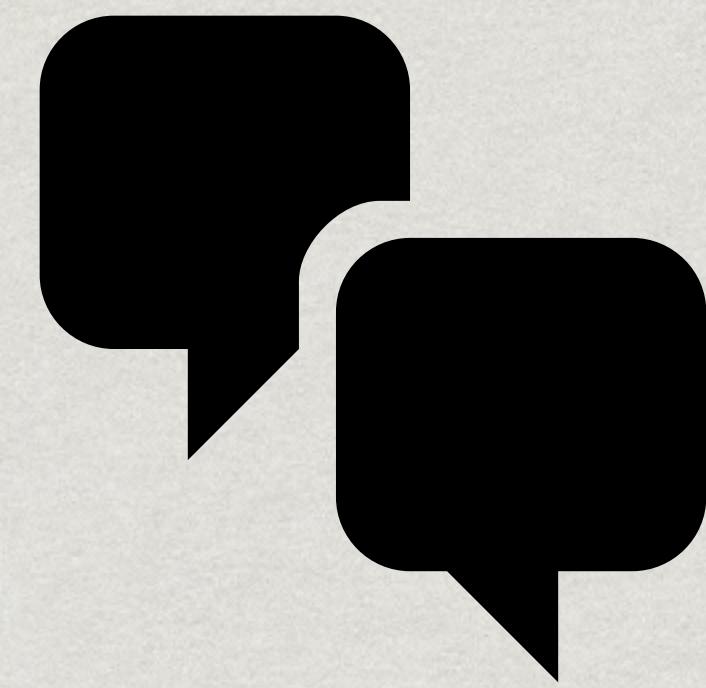

There are many different ways for you to get involved with WordPress:

↔ Core

The core team makes WordPress. Whether you're a seasoned PHP developer or are just learning to code, we'd love to have

Design

The design group is focused on the designing and developing the user interface. It's a home for designers and UXers alike.
